

Hansen named Washougal High School principal

WHS Associate Principal Aaron Hansen has been named principal beginning in the 2010-11 school year. He succeeds Gerry Stavney, who has served as principal for the past three years. Stavney was hired out of retirement in 2007 and could only work through the 2009-10 school year.

Hansen began his teaching career in the Spokane School District. He has worked in the Washougal School District since 2001, teaching math and science and serving as associate principal and secondary math coach. In 2007, Hansen became Associate Principal at Washougal High School and in 2009 he added Excelsior High School Principal to his job duties.

Hansen received his Master's Degree in Curriculum and Instruction from Eastern Washington University. He is currently participating in the Washington State Administrative Professional Certification program at WSU Vancouver. Hansen is married with two children.

"I am looking forward to continuing the work the WHS staff has committed to regarding improving our effectiveness," said Hansen. "I feel very fortunate because I know we (the WHS staff) have the support from district office, a community that knows how important our work is, and students who care about their education and want to learn."

Hathaway Elementary band receives grant

Hathaway Elementary School received several band instruments—two clarinets, two trumpets and one euphonium—as part of a grant from The Amphitheater at Clark County and the Mr. Holland's Opus Foundation.

The donation was especially welcome during a time when many school districts are facing budget cuts for band programs and families are struggling with their budgets as well.

Sandee Canton is the fifth grade band teacher at Hathaway.

Washougal High School students save money, earn college credit

Earning college credits by taking Career and Technical Education (CTE) classes has added up to welcome tuition savings for a number of Washougal High School students – and their parents. In 2008-09, Washougal High School students earned 221 credits and saved $17,504 by taking CTE classes at WHS. In 2007-08, students earned 200 credits for a savings of $15,720.

Tech Prep continues to strengthen the relationship between Clark College and high school Professional/Technical programs at local high schools giving students a seamless transition into college. An articulation agreement between Washougal High School (WHS) and Clark College allows students earning a 'B' grade or better in an approved course and completing registration requirements will receive Clark College credits. This year, the WHS Career and Technical Education (CTE) Department offers seven approved 'tech prep' classes in Accounting, Computer Applications, Medical Office Applications, Child Development, and Metals Technology. Credits are guaranteed at Clark College and may be transferable to another community college or university dependent upon the school's admission criteria.

Washougal High School offers students additional opportunities to jump start careers, earn college credits, and save money in the process. These include Running Start classes at Clark College, Clark County Skills Center vocational training, and WHS on-site Advanced Placement eligibility classes.
